

PRESIDENTIAL PREROGATIVE

As the final administrative authority for the University, the President has and must have the authority to act without consultation with any other person. The President has the authority to suspend or expel any student who is acting in a manner which the President feels is contrary to – and of a dangerous character to – the University as an institution, or to persons belonging to, or associated with, the University Community.